A Note from Deacon Jay VanHoosier

THE FEAST OF THE DEDICATION OF ST. JOHN LATERAN BASILICA

Tomorrow, November 9, the Church celebrates the Feast of the Dedication of the Lateran Basilica. Here's a bit of Catholic trivia: the pope's cathedral isn't St. Peter's Basilica! It's St. John Lateran, his cathedral as Bishop of Rome. This feast reminds us that our parish belongs to a Church that stretches far beyond our own community.

But what does celebrating a church building have to do with being a disciple? Perhaps it invites us to consider this: discipleship means making room for people we didn't choose.

We naturally gravitate toward people who think like us, pray like us, and make us comfortable. Yet baptism brings us into a family we didn't assemble ourselves. Jesus calls us to love the people he gathers—including those who challenge us, frustrate us, or see things differently.

Here at Precious Blood, that call takes shape in everyday encounters. It might mean welcoming an unfamiliar face, being patient with a restless child, listening to someone whose perspective differs from ours, or making sure a person sitting alone knows they belong.

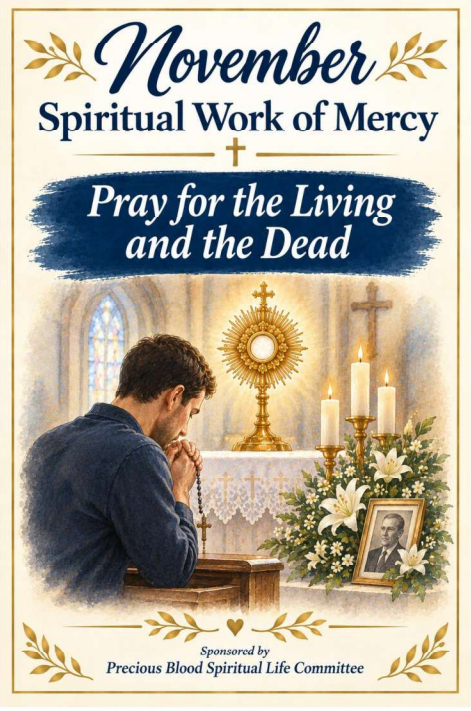

The Gospel for tomorrow's feast recounts Jesus cleansing the Temple. As we hear that passage, we might ask what needs clearing out of our own hearts. Have resentment, impatience, or the desire to have everything our own way taken up space that could be offered to someone else?

A church building is dedicated to God's purposes. Through baptism, so are we. Our discipleship becomes visible when others encounter Christ's welcome through us.

Who might find more room in our parish if I made more room in my heart?

Blessings,

Deacon Jay
